JAMES M'COY OIL BANDIT SHOT

A man who has been identified as the perpetrator of a large number of robberies at various points along the peninsula, was shot and killed Tuesday evening by Policeman Sylvester Douglas of the local police force.

The shooting took place immediately following the robbery of the Standard Oil Service Station at the corner of the highway and Claremont street by the bandit.

For several months past service stations in various parts of the peninsula have been suffering from the depredations of a bandit who has almost nightly appeared in some station and staged a hold-up. In every case the bandit has been successful in getting away. About two weeks ago the Standard Oil station here was held up, and the man escaped.

Determined to stop the looting of these places of business as far as Redwood City was concerned, Chief of Police Collins stationed an officer to watch the station. As was expected the bandit returned to this station for a second robbery. Officer Douglas, who was watching the station at that time from a small building near it, saw the man remove the money from the till and leave the station. As the man left, Douglas stepped out and ordered the bandit to throw up his hands. Instead the bandit began to draw the gun which he held up the station attendant.

At that the officer fired with a mowed-off shotgun which he was carrying and which was loaded with buckshot.

The shot of the officer was effective, and the bandit fell. Dr. Herbert Clattenberg was summoned and had the bandit removed to the Community hospital, where he passed away within two hours, without regaining consciousness. The remains were later taken to the James Crowe Undertaking Company in this city, where an inquest was held Wednesday.

An examination of the body failed to disclose any means of identification, except a design tattooed on one arm. From this it is judged that the man had served in the navy and finger prints were taken and sent to the navy department for identification.

Department and to the department of criminal identification in San Francisco for identification. At the inquest, station operators from several stations testified and all concurred in identifying the dead bandit as the one who had held them up. The operator on duty at the Standard Oil station at the time of the robbery was Milton Le Gard of this city. He explained how the robber had entered the station and had forced him at the point of a gun to turn over the money to him. The jury in its verdict commended Officer Douglas for putting an end to a career of a desperate criminal.

From the department of criminal identification it was learned Thursday that the man who had been shot was James McCoy, also sometimes called Melvin McCrea. It was also learned that he had served a term in Alcatraz naval

Carmel Men's Smoker Proved Enjoyable Event

A smoker held in the club rooms of the Carmel Men's Club Monday evening by that organization, proved to be a most enjoyable affair to the devotee of persons present. A fine bean supper was enjoyed and after this a splendid program, prepared under the direction of Ed Scott proved to be a feature of the evening. Those on the program included Tom Kenny, Turk Bedolla of San Jose, Joseph Judre, Ed Kenny, James McGrath of San Mateo, A. J. Stebbins, Miles Sharkey, Kendall Towne and Ben Schweickert, Rev. C. E. Kennedy and E. B. Ginnman gave short talks.

FOR GIRL SCOUTS
The board of trustees of Redwood City voted $50 last Monday evening for the Girl Scout movement in this district. The action of the board was taken following an appeal made by Mrs. A. S. Kalenborn, who with Mrs. Willis Frost, Mrs. W. C. Stevenson and Mrs. F. G. Fox, appeared before the board to ask that the Girl Scouts be given the same consideration which had been given the Boy Scouts have been granted $50, so a similar sum was voted for the Girl Scouts.

The meeting Monday evening was a short one, and owing to the fact that only three members of the board were present, many of the important matters were postponed to the next meeting.

C. D. Jessup, owner of a lot on Broadway between the highway and Arch street, appeared with plans for a business building which he desires to erect on his land. As this lot is now in the residence district, an action of the board placing it in the business zone will be necessary. The plans were referred to the planning commission for their recommendation. A permit was granted to Leonard and Holt to operate a bus line between the station here and their property in the Emerald Lake district.

The board considered the offer of the Federal Electric Co. to erect a sign with the words "Redwood City" at the corner of Broadway and the highway at a cost of $1243. No action was taken on the matter, as it was thought that the price was rather high.

OLD NEWSPAPERS FOUND
Hidden away beneath the stage of the old Germania hall for the past thirty years several copies of the Oakland Tribune of 1894 were found this week after the fire which nearly destroyed that building Sunday. The papers are of different dates in that year. How they came to be under the stage and by whom they were put there is a mystery which will probably never be solved.

Oddly enough, it appears to be among these papers of many years ago that the fire started for the stage was the most badly burned part of the building. Thus these papers should remain there for thirty years and then kindle into flames is one of the surprising things of the fire.

OIL TRUCK WRECKED
ON LA HONDA GRADE

Narrowly escaping death, when the loaded tank truck which he was driving turned over and rolled down the grade off the La Honda road, Wednesday, Ralph Brown, a truck driver for the Standard Oil Company, received severe injuries. Brown, it is said, turned to the side of the road to allow a large sight-seeing bus to pass. The earth at the side of the road was softened by the heavy rains and gave way under the heavy truck, which toppled over the bank.

The driver suffered a broken leg and several broken ribs, and possible internal injuries. He is now at the Community hospital at Berkeley, receiving attention. The truck was removed from its resting place yesterday in a badly wrecked condition.

GREAT INTEREST IN ELECTION

What is expected to be a record vote is promised for the municipal election Monday. Public sentiment is aroused in favor of one of the greatest opportunities ever offered to the public of Redwood City, the extension of Broadway, and it is further expected that an overwhelming majority will be at the polls Monday to further this improvement.

Another important measure on the ballot Monday will be the issuance of $45,000 bonds for the enlargement of the city hall. At present the city hall is too small to accommodate the city officers, who must find offices elsewhere. For these offices the city must pay rent at a high rate. It is further pointed out by City Engineer Dimmitt that his office, which is located in a frame building, contains records which if destroyed, would cost the city thirty or forty thousand dollars to replace.

The only contest in Monday's election is for the position of trustee. In this race Ed Dearborn is seeking a place on the board, while Mark Ryan and Mayor Henry Beeger, the incumbents, are seeking re-election. Z. T. Thorne, candidate for the short term, is without opposition.

DUNCAN REYNARD RECEIVES MERITED PROMOTION

Duncan Reynard, for a number of years the superintendent of collections of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company's office in Redwood City, has received a substantial promotion in recognition of his ability by the concern. Mr. Reynard was this week made assistant to the credit manager of the company at San Francisco. He was selected after due consideration and careful study of the ability of the employees of this division which shows how well young Reynard stood in the estimation of the officials of the company. Reynard after his graduation from the high school entered the employ of the company as a clerk and by diligent and hard work was promoted from time to time until he has a very responsible position. He has merited the promotion by his close attention to his work and making the company's business his business. He has been succeeded here by George Haydon of Sacramento. Reynard has a beautiful home at Palo Alto.

SHEK DAMAGES IN WATER ROW

Charging the Redwood City Ice Delivery, a corporation, with infringing on its copyright name for spring water, the Purity Springs Water company this week filed suit for $5000 against the Redwood City corporation in the Superior court.

The water company alleges it sells its product under the name of the Purity Springs water and that the defendant is selling water under the name of Puritan water, Purity drinking water and Purity water, thereby infringing on its copyright. The company further alleged it has spent $15,000 in advertising its product and expends $2000 yearly towards this end, and the Redwood City Ice Company is reaping some of the rewards of this advertising.

A. J. Stebbins is attorney for the plaintiff.

TO REVISIT HOME IN SWITZERLAND

Mr. and Mrs. A. Speuhler, formerly of the Enterprise bakery of this city, returned this week from a month spent at Baxter Springs and Colfax, and have left again, this time for Hollywood. Mr. Speuhler will remain in the city of film fame until the 25th of this month when they will return to take the naturalization examination here. Following this they will leave for an extended trip to their old home in Switzerland.

Mr. and Mrs. Speuhler have been in business in Redwood City many years, and have made many friends who are glad to see them enjoying a much needed rest after years of hard work. They have retired from the bakery business and will now travel and enjoy life.

CITY BRIEFS

Joseph R. Fitzpatrick, the well-known young attorney of Redwood City, has been commissioned a notary public by Governor F. W. Richardson. Mr. Fitzpatrick received his commission this week.

Members of Redwood Parlor N. S. G. W. are preparing for Motown's Night to be held by the parlor on Thursday evening, May 6. A committee headed by Clarence Junker is making arrangements for a grand occasion at that time.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. deWitt are being congratulated upon the birth Sunday night at the Community hospital of a baby son.

A number of the members of Redwood Lodge F. and A. M. attended the reception for Grand Master E. A. Boynton held Saturday evening at San Mateo.

Miss Hatty Nobbs, a teacher in the high school at Orange is visiting her parents in Wellesley Park.

Fred Lippman, a pioneer business man of this city, is seriously ill at the Fabiola hospital in Oakland, where he underwent an operation for a liver complaint. His condition is very serious and little hope is held for his recovery.

Vic Hildebrandt, commander of the local post of the American Legion, was a member of the reception committee which greeted National Commander, General John R. McQuigg of the Legion on his visit to San Francisco this week.

Lawrence A. Heiner, the local realty broker, this week sold the W. 7. Tasher property at Burlingame to W. G. Grouse, formerly business manager of the Omaha World Herald, but for the past year a resident of Redwood City. The federal stamps on the deed filed yesterday that the sum of $250,000 was paid for the holding.

The rainfall for the present storm in 250 inches making a total of 13.19 inches for the season as against 13.21 at this time last year. The total rainfall for last season up to May 31 was 14.21 inches.

Omar Doyle, who has been engaged in the real estate business here, has accepted a position as assistant secretary of the San Mateo County Building and Loan Association.

News was received here yesterday of the narrow escape of Mrs. David Snedden, wife of Dr. David Snedden, a professor of Harvard. Mrs. Snedden was attacked by a shark, while swimming in Hawila, and suffered a serious injury to one leg. She is a relative of Dr. J. C. and Attorney George Ross of this city, and Dr. Snedden was formerly a professor at Stanford.

Mrs. Joe Gibson and children spent the Easter vacation at Capitola. Mrs. Gibson is the wife of Manager Gibson of the local plant of the Pratt Lowe Canning Company.

Indiana Council Degree of Pochontas held an enjoyable card party on Tuesday evening. Those who held high scores were Mesdames G. Bentley, C. Jones, Isabel Alvis, L. Hexmer and Mrs. Gould; Messrs. Chester Coy, H. Garcia, J. C. Jones, William Hansen, Otto Hunn and K. L. Murray.

The Mt. Carmel Aid-Society will hold a whist party in the rooms of the Carmel Men's Club on the corner of Brewster and Warren streets on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Score cards will be 25 cents each.

Mrs. Otto Johansen, while attending an Easter birthday party in honor of the 12th birthday of her son, at the home of her sister, Mrs. M. Shurkey, fell and broke her bones of her ankle. She was given emergency treatment by Dr. Murphy and later returned to her home in San Francisco.

The Neighbors of Woodcraft are planning a dance to be given next Saturday evening at the Episcopal Parish house. Dancing will be enjoyed from 8 to 12.

The papers this week contained a story of the invention of a new type of motor, which it is believed may transform the present ideas of engine construction. The invention uses hydrogen as a source of power and has been developed by Gordon Tasher, a 'convent serving' a life term at San Quentin. Tasher will be remembered as one of the three boys sentenced from here about five years ago for the brutal murder of a taxi driver. The case attracted wide attention at the time owing to the revolting features of the murder.

Mrs. G. L. Bresse is seriously ill at her home on Elwood street.

The wedding of Miss Margaret Gould and Robert W. Shraoke, which occurred last week at the parsonage of the Episcopal church, was a great surprise to friends of both parties. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. E. Clay. Miss Gould is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gould of Clinton street, and since her graduation from the Sequoia Union High School has been employed in the office of an insurance company in San Francisco. Mr. Shraoke is a civil engineer employed by the Pacific Portland Cement Co. The young couple are now making their home in the Jansing apartments.

Mrs. W. A. Crowell has been confined to her home with an attack of the flu.

Mrs. Bostwick Barnes entertained the boys of her Sunday School class at her home on Brewster street, Thursday evening.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR JOHN ERNEST GREY

Floral tributes testifying to the high regard in which he was held by friends and business associates almost completely filled the chapel of the Layne and Tinney undertaking parlors here Thursday evening for the body of John Ernest Grey, circulation manager of the San Francisco Call. Funeral services were held Thursday for the late newspaperman at Cypress Lawn cemetery. Rev. R. J. Currie of the Congregational church here officiating.

The deceased was a native of New Orleans and was 42 years of age. For the past 14 years he had been connected with the San Francisco Call, and was recognized throughout the state as a leader in the department with which he was connected. The deceased began life under very humble circumstances, and his great success was due to his own ambition and hard work. His first visit to this city, and many subsequent visits was as a large hand in the line of seows which bring tankbark to the Frank tannery here. From this position he worked himself into a position of great responsibility and large remuneration which he has filled so well until the time of his death.

Surviving Mr. Grey are his widow, Mrs. Leonora Grey and three step-sons, Truitt R. Gurley of San Francisco, Lee G. Gurley of Oakland, and Lieutenant Doris D. Gurley of Honolulu. The deceased was a member of Balder Lodge No. 324, F. and A. M. of San Francisco, a member of the Knights Templar and of Islam Temple A. A. O. N. M. S.

PARTY, APRIL 20TH

An evening replete with novel features is promised to those who attend the card party to be given by the local Rebekah lodge on the evening of Tuesday, April 20th in the I. O. O. F. hall. An energetic committee is busy planning for the event and many surprises in the form of entertainment are in store for you. Numerous and attractive prizes will be given away, among which is a beautiful lamp shade which will be given as a door prize. Jot the date, April 20th, on your social calendar, for you are assured of a pleasant evening at the Rebekah card party on that date.

PARTNERSHIP IN MILL

A. A. Arends and Gust Mannels, who for several years have been conducting the Peninsula Planting Mill, located on the corner of the Highway and Vera avenue, have this week announced that they are dissolving partnership and that the mill hereafter will be conducted by Gust Mannels.

Mr. Arends is heavily interested in real estate in and about Redwood City, and while he has definitely stated that he will at once enter the building business, his plans are being formulated along those lines. However, as soon as the weather conditions settle and roads are reported in good shape, Mr. Arends plans on taking a little trip back into the desert in Nevada. He at one time lived in the Sagebrush State and the lure of the purple sage still calls.

Work Begun on Bridge Across Redwood Creek

Machinery was brought to town Thursday and actual operations were begun yesterday on a bridge across Redwood creek, just on the north side of Broadway. The bridge will connect the property of H. Gardner and A. Fromm and is being built by them. When completed the bridge will form a short street at right angles to Broadway and it is hoped by the builders that it will be continued north eventually to connect with Bradford street.

It is the announced intention of both men to build modern business buildings on the corners, which will be formed by the construction of the new street.

BURLINGAME WANTS AID IN HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT

Ex-Mayor William Pierson of Burlingame appeared before the board of supervisors at their meeting Monday and asked for aid in Burlingame's plan to resurface the highway through that town. The improvement will cost about $10,000. Pierson stated, and asked that the county pay half of this work. James S. James, city engineer of Burlingame, accompanied Pierson and explained that Burlingame is anxious to do the work immediately as it is the Highway department has offered its crew and equipment for use at the present time, but that in a few weeks the state will need its highway force in other sections.

The matter was placed before District Attorney Swart, who read the statute concerning the county spending money for use within an incorporated city. Swart stated that it was entirely within the jurisdiction of the supervisors to spend money for this use if they so desired.

District Attorney Swart was asked to investigate the legal phases of the matter and prepare an opinion. The matter will be considered later.

REV. CLAY TO LEAVE FOR PACIFIC GROVE

Rev. Albert E. Clay, pastor of St. Peter's Episcopal church, at a meeting of the vestry Tuesday evening offered his resignation as pastor here. Rev. Clay stated that he had received a call from the Episcopal church in Pacific Grove which he wished to accept. Rev. Clay's resignation will take effect after the first Sunday in May.

Rev. Clay's resignation was a surprise to his many friends in Redwood City, and it is much regretted that he has decided to leave. He and Mrs. Clay came to this city over a year ago, and since that time have become firmly established in the church life of the community. Under Rev. Clay's able guidance the parish has made a phenomenal growth, the new parish building has been built and occupied, and all affairs of the parish have been taken care of. Both Rev. and Mrs. Clay were friendly amiable people and many lasting friendships have been made during their residence in this community.

LOCAL CANNERY TO BE CONSIDERABLY ENLARGED

Extensive improvements are being made at the local plant of the Pratt Low Canning Company. These additions to the already extensive plant will cost in the neighborhood of $20,000 according to Superintendent Joe Gibson. Among these additions being installed are a new building of re-enforced concrete and corrugate iron 50 by 150 feet. In this will be housed new machinery costing about $10,000. The business of the local plant has developed to such an extent that considerable enlargement was found necessary.

PROPERTY ON MAPLE STREET
SOLD; OWNER TO BUILD

Earl Rush this week sold a piece of land on Maple street, adjoining the Foresters' hall to Dessen Brothers, who own the building on the corner of Maple and Main streets. It is the plan of the new owners to remove an old frame building now on the property and erect a modern structure. A price of $10,000 is said to have been paid for the property.

FIRE WRECKS OLD BUILDING

A fire of unknown origin on Sunday morning while the rain fell in a torrent nearly ended the earthly existence of the old Germania hall, one of the oldest landmarks of this city. The flames had gained considerable headway in the upper portion of the building before the smoke was noticed, and an alarm turned in. The fire department, therefore, had an uphill job in combatting the fire, and all equipment on hand was necessary for the purpose.

The department was aided in its efforts by the fact that the roof had been thoroughly soaked by the rain of the past twenty-four hours, and did not burn rapidly. Five lines of fire hose were taken to the upper story and after several hours of fighting the fire was extinguished. The upper portion of the building was badly damaged and will probably be torn down as it is too far gone for repairs.

The building is an old one and has been condemned for years. The fire disclosed the fact that the timbers were badly rotted, and Fire Chief Ryan during the fire had to order the water turned off to allow the water which accumulated on the upper story to run off so that the floor would not collapse from the weight.

The only damage by fire was to the upper story which was abandoned, but the water did some damage to the stores which occupied the lower floor. Most of the merchandise from these were removed in time, but the New Canton cafe which is located at the corner suffered severely by the loss of a large dinner which was being prepared for Easter, also by other damage by the water.

NOTED EDUCATOR SPEAKS AT KIWANIS CLUB MEETING

Vaughn MacCaughy, editor of the Sierra Educational News, and one of the foremost authorities on education in the United States, was the speaker at the Kiwanis Club at its regular meeting Wednesday. Professor MacCaughy was for many years superintendent of schools of Hawila, and in that capacity was chairman of the Pan Pacific Conference, a bi-national meeting of all nations bordering on the Pacific Ocean, where matters of international importance are discussed. He, therefore, spoke with the greatest authority on his topic, "Race Relations in the Pacific."

The problem of the future, stated Professor MacCaughy, will not be what nation shall dominate the Pacific, but whether the higher classes of all nations will co-operate for the best interests of the nations in general. Every nation, he stated, has every type of citizen from the outstanding genius to the moron, and it is only by a mutual understanding and co-operation by the best citizens of each nation that race problems will be solved.

A pleasant feature of Wednesday's meeting was an entertainment by the girls' glee club of Whittier college. Twenty-six young ladies of that institution were the guests of the Kiwanians, and their singing was much appreciated.

At the meeting of the club Wednesday two new members were added to the membership, Louis Behrens and Dan Stafford.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Wets and Dries to Air Their Views on Prohibition in Senate.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WHAT is expected to be the most voluminous discussion on a domestic issue since the free silver talk, will be started in the United States senate on Monday, April 5. The topic is to be modification of the prohibition law and the eighteenth amendment, and debate is to continue for twelve days.

Consequently, the first move in the struggle for and against reopening the prohibition question for new congressional legislation has been won by the wets. This victory is in the form of a compromise agreed upon in order to allow the wets in the senate and their followers throughout the land to have public hearings on bills to modify the prohibition act and to amend the eighteenth amendment in return for their tacit promise not to delay other matters in the senate by means of daily speeches against prohibition.

Under the compromise, they are now to make their speeches and summon their witnesses before the senate judiciary subcommittee, which will sit for twelve days in a spacious committee room of the senate office building and publicly hear testimony on the benefits and the perils of prohibition as the witnesses may declare they have found them.

When this subcommittee has concluded the subcommittee will turn over the bills of testimony to the judiciary committee for its guidance in recommending or not recommending to the senate the passage of one or more of the five modification bills now before it. The wets are to be heard first and will be allowed six days; then the dries for six days. From all parts of the United States, and Canada even, witnesses will be brought.

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, will have charge of operations for the dries. The field marshals and floor managers of the wets are to be Senators Edge (Rep., N. J.), Edwards (Dem., N. J.), and Bruce (Dem., Md.) with Senator Reed (Dem., Mo.) directing impromptu operations which are expected to provide the sensations of the campaign.

This official opening of the subject will bring the first public hearings ever granted by congress on proposals to modify the Volstead act since the eighteenth amendment was ratified in 1919. The senatorial wets call it a victory. "What we want, and all we want at this time," Senator Edge said, "is to get our evidence on the evils and scandals of prohibition before the country under authentic auspices. And we don't think this is an unfair wish. Sentiment is changing. Failure of the prohibition law is obvious and disgraceful. We welcome this chance merely to be heard."

On the other hand, Senator Walsh (Dem., Mont.) denounced the proposition as "mere wet press agency," and said he had no sympathy with it. When the subcommittee's recommendation came before the judiciary committee Senator Walsh was the only one against it among the eleven senators voting.

The five bills on which testimony is to be heard are one by Senator Bruce, to permit manufacture, sale and distribution of hard liquor by the government, and local option in the matter of admitting such goods into a designated area; one by Senator Edwards, to modify the Volstead act to permit 4 per cent beer, and three by Senator Edge, to legalize 2.75 per cent beer, to permit beverages of "any alcoholic content not intoxicating in fact," and to remove restrictions now placed on the prescription of whiskey for medicinal purposes.

The twelve days granted is not enough for the prohibition hearings, according to Senator Edwards who announced in the senate that he would introduce a resolution calling for a full, complete and comprehensive investigation of all phases of the subject by a joint congressional committee.

In Pennsylvania the contest over the nomination of the Republican candidate for United States senator is viewed as a clear-cut issue between the friends and foes of prohibition. On one side the advocates of such amendment of the Volstead law as would permit light wines and beer are backing Congressman Vane of Philadelphia. On the other side are the absolute dries who just now are torn between two rival dry candidates for the nomination, Senator George Wharton Pepper and Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

In Wisconsin, too, the prohibition question enters into the senate race. Frank J. Kelly, formerly in charge of liquor case prosecutions in Washington, D. C., will be a candidate for Republican nomination this fall on a light wines and beer platform. Kelly, quoted as expressing the belief that enforcement of prohibition is impossible, will seek the seat now held by Irvine L. Lenroot. He will be a candidate of the Anti-Tax League of America, which is described as having as its central idea the raising of sufficient revenue from wines and beer to abolish the federal and state income taxes.

WINSTON CHURCHILL, chancellor of the exchequer, told the house of commons that Great Britain had obligated herself to pay to the United States nearly $300,000 a day for three generations through the debt funding agreement. France, while paying no one her obligations, is receiving most of the reparations being paid by Germany, the chancellor said, yet, he continued, the United States is receiving from Europe an amount equalling Germany's total payments.

At conferences on international debts there has always been a marked difference of the view between Great Britain and the United States. Mr. Churchill declared, Great Britain had never taken the position that debts contracted in a common cause ought to be considered on the same basis as ordinary commercial debts. The government always was willing, he asserted, to obliterate altogether the debts owing to the allies, provided Great Britain was treated in a similar manner by her creditors.

The day is coming, he said, "when France and Italy have funded their debts both to Great Britain and the United States, as well as the smaller powers, when America will be receiving 60 per cent of the total reparations from Germany. It seems an extraordinary situation, the pressure for debt extraction will draw the reparations through all channels from war-stricken Europe in an unbroken stream across the Atlantic to the wealthy, prosperous great republic. I believe these facts will not pass the minds of responsible persons, either in the United States or Europe."

Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer under the Socialist cabinet, speaking before the same body, said France's financial record for the last few years was one of the most disgraceful in the history of international finance. France estimated its war damage just under fifteen billions of dollars. At an average cost it has estimated the damage to the coal mines at $50,000,000, which, he said, was more than the total capital value of the mines.

THE Gooding long and short haul bill was defeated in the senate by a vote of 23 to 43. Eighteen Republicans and fifteen Democrats voted for the bill, while against the bill were thirty Republicans, fifteen Democrats and one Farmer-Labor member. By this action the senate refused to deprive the Interstate Commerce commission of discretionary power to authorize railroads to make rates to the Pacific coast from the Middle West to enable them to meet water competition through the Panama canal.

MOTOR speed limits of fifteen miles an hour in business districts, except where traffic is controlled, twenty miles an hour in residence districts, and thirty-five miles an hour "under all other conditions," was the recommendation made by Secretary Hoover to the "save your life conference" in Washington which was called to make life and limb safe in American streets and highways. Despite efforts of certain of the 1,000 delegates from forty-six states to have the model motor traffic code drafted so as to permit increased speeds, the advocates of slower rates won. All such considerations as transportation, road capacity, etc., were subordinated to "safety first," which won by the votes of three-fourths of the delegates. Nathan W. MacChesney of Chicago advocated lower speed limits and pointed out that as speed is increased over any given highway the number of cars which that highway will accommodate is automatically reduced, because the space intervals between cars must be made greater.

"At 23 miles an hour," Mr. MacChesney said, "2,000 cars could pass a given point on a road; at 26 miles, 2,570 cars; at 31 miles, 2,500 cars; at 34 miles, 2,400 cars, and at 40 miles only 2,080. But curiously enough when you decrease speed to 20 miles, you again moved 2,570 cars, as for 26 miles and at 14 miles only 2,400 cars, as at 34 miles. Our studies show that at 22 miles you got about the maximum capacity of the road."

THE United States will be represented at the preliminary conference on disarmament to be held under the auspices of the League of Nations in Geneva, beginning May 17, by Hugh S. Gibson, minister to Switzerland, now here on a visit. At present it is not thought likely, however, that this country will be represented at the meeting of league members to be held in Geneva next September.

SECRETARY OF NAVY WILBUR has announced that Col. Alexander S. Williams, commanding the Fourth regiment of Marines at San Diego, Cal., must face a court-martial on a charge of intoxication at a party in a hotel in that city. Mr. Wilbur declined to make any comment on the defense of Colonel Williams against the charges filed by Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, successor to Colonel Williams as commandant of the Marine base, on the ground that the accused officer has right to his own defense and therefore did not feel warranted in making public the written statement which the colonel submitted.

A SUBCOMMITTEE report adverse to the election claims of Senator Brookhart (Rep., Iowa) was approved by the full committee on privileges and elections of the senate. The vote was ten to one, with two members not recorded. Under the subcommittee's report, as accepted by a majority of the full committee, Daniel F. Steck, the Democratic nominee in the 1924 election, is held to have been elected over Senator Brookhart by a plurality of 1,420 votes. The report has been submitted to the house and it is expected, at this writing, that action on the contest will be taken in the near future. Present indications are that Steck will be seated, which will probably mean that Senator Brookhart will file a petition for the Republican senatorial nomination against Senator Cummins (Rep., Iowa) in the Iowa primaries in June.

UNITED STATES Ambassador Myron T. Herrick is en route to Morocco to take a look at the French war against Abdel Krim. Preparations are being made to receive him at Rabat, then to take him to Fez, which is the base of the French offensive operations for spring. The high command expects to take the ambassador touring and possibly give him a peep at the battle against the Rifis, with the French aviators bombing the natives and the tanks, armored cars, machine guns, field artillery, and all modern implements of warfare combining against the Mauser rifles of the Moors.

PERU has accepted the tender of the good offices of the United States for a nonplebiscitary settlement of the Tacna-Arica question. Every effort has been put forth by officials here and at Santiago and Lima to bring about an agreement for a settlement of the question by another method than the plebiscitary one. Chile accepted an earlier tender made through Ambassador Collier at Santiago.

IT is expected that the March receipts of income taxes will greatly exceed Treasury department estimates. If the estimate of $450,000,000 matures, receipts for the current fiscal year certainly will go well above $1,800,000,000 from this source.

COLOR IMPORTANT IN TOPCOAT; FOR THE BIG AND LITTLE GIRL

IT is good to be living in the present day, when one can wear, in the name of fashion, colors as bright and joyous as the tints of the rainbow. Such a season for color as this! Even our cloth topcoats, which once we thought must appear in tone as neutral as shy-pussy willows in springtime, now take on color.

Indeed color is playing a role so vastly important that it all but counts more than the actual styling of the garment. It is a fact, a garment may flare without sacrificing the slim silhouette which is as popular as ever. The majority of simple cloth coats are collared with dainty spring fur, as is true of the model in the picture.

In all clothes for youngsters, beginning with the little tots and going on to those of the sub deb, one sees repeated, or reflected, the style points that were first presented for grownups. Evidently spring's new modes became the inspiration of those designers who occupy themselves with be fashioned most simply, free from any novel detailing, yet if it registers an important new shade, its style significance is pronounced at a glance.

Green is one of the leading color themes for cloth this season, especially soft-toned shades. Even the tans have lost all somberness, as they take on a touch of rose. Then there are the rose tones themselves which have been so assertive among Palm Beach colorings and which bid fair to repeat their vogue throughout spring and summer modes. As to navy and gray, they are pre-eminently smart colorings of coats, hats or frocks.

No less fascinating than the coloring of our spring coats, are the materials from which they are made. There is an impressive air of refinement about the exquisitely textured woolsens featured the needs of the younger generation. They have not even omitted the note of greater elaboration in spring styles and so little missy is going to be somewhat less simply dressed than she has been. This is true, at any rate, of her dressup and party frocks.

When taffeta came bustling in, the makers of children's clothes pounced upon it for nothing is better suited to youthful wearers. It is used alone and in combinations of many sorts, with other materials, for pretty dresses and party frocks for the little miss. It is particularly well adapted to making self-trimmings—as ruffles, ruffles and shirtings or puffs. The little frock pictured is an illustration, in which puffs of taffeta, shirred over a cord at each edge, form a trimming for the dress. It is easily fashioned throughout all fashion's realm. Emphasized among leading fabrics are twills, reps and wool bengalines.

Inspired by choice fabrics of perfect coloring, the stylist is making it a point to carry the thought of superior workmanship and careful detailing into the moderate-priced coat as well as the more costly types. The coat in the picture may be in almost any coloring of one's choosing. Fine twill is the medium chosen for its development. Its outstanding detail when it comes to its styling is that extra fullness has been acquired by introducing a subtle flare at the side seams in conjunction with a pointed waistline brought from the back to under the arms. Thus has genius adopted the lone into rosettes and flower forms. This simple and pretty frock has a belt of ribbon and little flowers made of it set at intervals along the puffs.

The jumper mode is developed in dressy frocks; with skirts of finely plaited georgette or other light materials, and worn with blouses of gay printed silk that harmonize in color. The combination of georgette and other fabrics is skirts of the georgette trimmed with a lattice work of silk or wool fabric, joined to a long bodice of the same fabric with a georgette vest. Gay and pleasing colors are chosen for little girls' party frocks.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

For those who like the old-fashioned buttermilk soup, the following will be enjoyed.

Mulled Buttermilk.—Take five cupsful of buttermilk, stir a tablespoonful of flour into a little of the buttermilk, add and cook until boiling hot. Season with cinnamon, sugar or nutmeg.

Kidney Beans With Sour Cream.—Cook the beans until tender, then add sour cream to moisten thoroughly. Place over a slow fire and simmer one hour. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Orange and Water Cress Salad.—Arrange a nice bed of water cress on a salad plate, arrange overlapping slices of orange and serve with French dressing. Very nice to serve with game.

Baked Onions and Cheese.—Parboil half a dozen medium-sized onions until nearly tender. Drain and put them into a baking dish, then cover with a layer of white sauce and a sprinkling of good snappy cheese, repeat and finish the top with a layer of buttered crumbs. Bake in a hot oven until the crumbs are brown.

Brown Nut Bread.—Take two cupsful of graham flour, one cupful of wheat flour, one-half cupful of molasses, one tablespoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one cupful of raisins, and one and one-half cupsful of walnut meats. Mix and bake in a moderate oven.

Mock Crab.—Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter, add one-half cupful of flour, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of mustard, one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika. When well blended pour in gradually while stirring constantly, one and one-half cupsful of scalded milk. Bring to the boiling point and add one can of corn, one egg lightly beaten, three teaspoonfuls of Worcestershire sauce. Turn into a buttered dish, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until brown.

Onion Sandwich.—Chop a small onion, add salt, pepper, a little vinegar and oil and spread on buttered bread.

Split-Pea Soup.—Soak a cupful of split peas in two quarts of water. In the morning put the peas over the fire with a ham bone or piece of salt pork, a slice of onion, and simmer for four hours. Rub through a sieve, return to the fire; melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two of flour, mix well and add a little soup to the consistency of pouring. Stir into the soup and cook five to ten minutes. Season with salt, pepper and add one cupful of thin cream just at serving time.

Timely Dishes.
A good salad is always appreciated and a good salad is one which is dressed with a tasty dressing.

Lettuce With Egg Salad.—Put crisp head lettuce cut into quarters on salad plates after being well chilled in cold water and drained. Take hard-boiled eggs and put the yolks through a ricer; chop the whites very fine. Pour highly seasoned French dressing over the lettuce and sprinkle with the whites and yolks. This makes a pretty salad to carry out the color scheme of yellow.

Pear Salad.—Set half a canned pear on a few heart leaves of lettuce. Sprinkle with a few cubes of Neufchatel cheese and half as many strips of pimento. Take one cupful of double cream, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, four tablespoonfuls of the pear sirup, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and four tablespoonfuls of honey. Beat the dressing until light and pour over the salad.

Caramel Cornstarch Pudding.—Take two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, mix and cook with one pint of milk. Put three-fourths of a cupful of brown sugar in a smooth frying pan, melt and stir until dissolved and a golden brown, then add the boiling hot cornstarch mixture. Stir until all the sugar is well blended with the pudding, add a pinch of salt and serve in sherbet cups with whipped cream.

Cinnamon Rolls.—Take two cupsful of light bread dough, add one-half cupful of sugar, four tablespoonfuls of shortening, cut in the mixture until well blended. Roll out, using flour to handle, then spread with butter, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon, roll up and cut into small rings. Place to rise on a baking sheet; dust with brown sugar just before baking.

Spring Salad.—Slice crisp red radishes very thin, add sliced green onions and a little chopped green pepper. Serve on lettuce with a mayonnaise dressing.

Tomatoes and tomato juice are invaluable aids in the diet of young or old. Use the fresh tomatoes, canned, or the juice—all good for children. Dishes made chiefly from milk, fish, meat, poultry and eggs with meat substitutes form the most important group in a well-balanced ration. Then come cereals, breads, fats, of which butter is the most important.

Fay Lanphier's Beauty Secrets

A LOT of people ask me how it feels to go all the way across the continent to Atlantic City and then be chosen Miss America. The answer is, I would like to help every California woman make the most of the charms Nature has given her. Much depends on the way you dress—and most of all on the hats you wear.

I have written a book on hat styles which is yours, FREE, if you will just ask me for it. It tells you hat styles originate, what hat is most becoming to your type, and it illustrates, with my pictures, the hats I wear, which were copied specially for me from exclusive Paris models by a large New York manufacturer. The booklet shows you how to order these stunning sport felt hats direct from New York. You may have it FREE if you will write for it today. I am sure it will help you realize your charms of style and attractiveness.

I want you to use the coupon today so you can be sure of being one of the first California women to have these styles. If you wish, write us, stating headsize measured in inches, and color preferred, and we will send you hat pictured above, for $4.95 C. O. D.

GRATEFUL TO SENATOR SHORTRIDGE

THE people of North Palo Alto feel grateful to Senator Samuel M. Shortridge for his efforts in securing permission for them to have the new sewer system in that section run through the U. S. Veterans' hospital grounds to connect with the main sewer that is constructed through the government property. A long and costly detour would have to be made to make the connection, and then, too, a better grade will be secured by making the short cut. In planning the system, the engineer in charge had difficulty and at once applied to the superintendent of the hospital to get the necessary permission to run the pipe through the grounds but that official was powerless to act as such a permission had to be secured from the Veterans' Bureau at Washington. Mr. C. H. Steere, president of the North Palo Alto Sanitary District, at once communicated with Mr. Shortridge, who in a short time was able to get the permit and wired it to Mr. Steere. Senator Shortridge knew the situation, was familiar with the locality and was able to act promptly. This little incident is a splendid argument in favor of Mr. Shortridge's retention office and a good reason why the people of San Mateo county should give the senator a big vote at the August primary election. He can do more for the people here than a southern man, for the reason that he is familiar with this section of the state and can act promptly on all problems submitted to him. Then, too, this locality is nearer to his heart than any other place, for it is his home and of course there is no place like home.

OUR LAST SHOT

AS election time is approaching, and as this is our last time to urge upon the voters the necessity of voting for the opening up of Broadway, we take advantage of this opportunity.

As a business man of this town remarked to us the other day, "If you were going to lay out a townsite for Redwood City, you would not lay it out with Broadway ending as it does." That is a fact. The present situation has many obviously bad features. Among these may be mentioned that it puts a most effectual barrier to the growth of fully one quarter of our town; it creates a bad traffic corner; it will shut Redwood City out of all advantage from the proposed East Side Highway when that road is built; and last, but by no means least, it bars the one advantageous point of entrance to Redwood City from roads connecting with the Dumbarton bay bridge, which will be completed within a few months, and which will form one of the main lines of traffic to the east bay section.

Another consideration which must be taken into account is the development of manufacturing in Redwood City. We have here a territory unsurpassed in industrial possibilities, but this territory is separated from the business section by the barrier at the head of Broadway. We are trying to get new industries to locate here; we have every advantage to offer in the way of factory sites, deep water, and good living conditions—but access to this industrial area is blocked. To reach it the prospective manufacturer must go up to Stambaugh street, out to Chestnut and back again to land which if Broadway were opened would be within a block or two of the main part of town.

Never again will the people of Redwood City have a chance to make so great an improvement with so little cost. The land will never be cheaper than it is now, and in all likelihood there will be little decrease in construction costs. Now is the appointed time for this improvement.

Keep these facts in mind on Monday as you mark your ballot, and be careful how you vote.

AN EFFICIENT DEPARTMENT

SPeaking of the Redwood City police department this week District Attorney Franklin Swart characterized it as the most efficient police organization in the county. "Redwood City can certainly be proud of its police force," said the district attorney. "Why, it is so good that we cannot even keep detectives in Redwood City without them being discovered."

The district attorney in carrying out his dry enforcement campaign has frequently to employ plain clothes men who are strangers in the district to secure evidence against the bootleggers. It is here that he has difficulty with the local police. "I can't have a detective in Redwood City for three days but that he is located by the police, and has to confess what he is doing."

In another town of the county, the district attorney stated, he once had a crew of detectives quartered for three weeks without attracting the least notice from the police. The federal officers have met with a similar fate in Redwood City, said the district attorney.

Strangers who seem to have no particular business are soon noticed by the local police, and unless they can give some good explanation of their actions are speedily investigated.

ists that they were not to be served milk in the original bottle, the cap of which must be removed in the presence of the consumer. In other words, a public eating place cannot serve a glass of milk from a quart bottle or bulk container to a patron. In such practice most of the cream is removed in the first glass and the remainder is skim milk.

Another section of the State Dairy Law being violated not only by restaurants and confectionaries but by the housewife as well is the practice of returning dirty or unwashed milk bottles to the dairyman. Steps are being taken to enforce this provision of the dairy law as it is a protection not only to the dairymen but the public and if the freshly emptied milk bottle is simply rinsed with cold water at once very little washing is asked of the consumer.

We are requiring the dealers and distributors to live up to the dairy laws in providing sanitary conditions and equipment for handling milk and it would seem only fair that the public should do its part in aiding the dairyman to provide clean containers for his milk. The laws says that—

"All bottles shall be thoroughly cleaned before returning same to the retailer or distributor."

Returning a dirty bottle or one in which the milk has been allowed to dry works a great hardship on the dealer as such bottles require special washing and cleansing and very often must be destroyed.

In the modern dairy plant, the milk bottles are carefully inspected and after filling but occasional-ly one will get by which has been stained in some way. The dairyman is of course blamed and perhaps rightfully so but the consumer who failed in his duty to return a clean bottle is most responsible. Putting flowers or oils and many other substances in milk bottles renders them unfit to be used again for milk and the dealer must break them.

A word might also be said about returning all empty milk bottles to the dairyman. These bottles are his property and the housewife and others have no right to retain them for any purpose whatsoever. If there are any extra milk bottles in your pantry, cellar or about the premises, get them out during the spring house cleaning and put them on the porch. The replacing of dirty and lost bottles constitutes a tremendous loss to all the milk men and if this source of expense could be eliminated or reduced lower milk costs would undoubtedly result.

During the month 92 samples of milk were tested by the county milk inspector also the milk plants and dairies inspected. A total of $235.26 was received by the county treasurer on the dairymen.

Respectfully submitted,
JOHN J. GARLAND
Milk Inspector

Fifty years ago all the telephones in the world were being made by one man, Thomas A. Watson, in the little electrical shop of Charles Williams at 109 Court street, Boston, a building, by the way, which still stands as it is now used as a motion picture theatre. Here it was in this shop, which became the first telephone shop, that Alexander Graham Bell made his wonderful discovery of the principle which led to the invention of the telephone.

Watson, who is still alive and active, made the first telephone in his building and continued to make all the Bell telephones until his death. The limited source of equipment supply became inadequate to meet the growing demand for telephones. It was at this time that the commercial telephone exchange made its appearance in several of the larger cities.

Necessary to provide a larger source of supply. Accordingly, licenses were granted to four other electrical concerns to use the Bell patents in the manufacture of telephone apparatus.

In 1881 the Western Electric Company was organized, and in 1882 it became what it has since continued to be, the main manufacturer for Bell telephones, apparatus and equipment. Keeping pace with the tremendous growth of the Bell system, the Bell telephone workshop grew has the immense Hawthorne plant in Chicago and a new cable and telephone plant at Kearny, N. J. The great Western Electric Hawthorne plant in Chicago is, in reality, a city within a city with a population of over 24,000 individuals, which includes nearly every trade and profession, the buildings in this plant alone providing 87 acres of floor space. A new plant in Kearny, N. J., which is now under construction, will add 100 acres.

By the time that the telephone exchange made its appearance in several of the larger cities, the manufacture of telephone cable and switchboard was built on a 60-acre tract on the Passaic River.

To supply the nation's telephone requirements is a gigantic task. In a single year there is transformed into finished telephone apparatus and equipment at the great Hawthorne shops alone an almost incredible amount of raw materials which is gathered from the four corners of the earth. The total output of lead-covered cable in 1925 was over 15,000 miles, containing 15,346,000,000 conductor feet of wire.

Less than fifty years ago one man made all the telephones in the world, while now the Western Electric Company, the manufacturer of standard Bell telephone apparatus and equipment, employs an army of about 25,000 to keep up with

GIVES FINAL DECREE

On Tuesday Judge Buck gave a final decree to Frank Triguero in his divorce suit against Mable Triguero. According to the interdictory decree the children were placed in the custody of Mary Costa, their grandmother, who is to receive the sum of a month from plaintiff for care and support.

ACTION FOR DIVORCE

J. D. Spencer has brought an action in the Superior court for an interdictory decree of divorce from his wife Evelyn Spencer on the ground of cruelty. The couple were married in October, 1886. They were married at Burlingame last. The couple have three children. James T. O'Keefe is attorney for plaintiff.

SUPPLEMENT

TIMES-GAZETTE, REDWOOD CITY, SAN MATEO COUNTY, CALIFORNIA.

SAN CARLOS

Mrs. Fred Johnson, Sr., entertained at a delightful bridge party at her home on Wednesday afternoon.

Albert and Marie Christenson were visitors at the home of their father and mother on Sunday.

Mrs. W. L. Kenealy, Nickle Kenealy, Mrs. H. Dorch and Peggy Dorch have gone to Walla Walla, Washington, where they will visit with relatives during the absence of Mr. Kenealy who is away at Lassen.

R. L. Jones and family have purchased the bungalow just completed by O. Christenson. Mr. Jones is chief clerk of the American Express Company.

Community Club Meets

At the business meeting of the San Carlos Community Club, Mrs. A. Donnelly, now publicity chairman, was appointed recording secretary. Mrs. John Farnham delivered an excellent talk on the proposed consolidation of San Mateo and San Francisco counties.

Fred H. Drake talked on the matter of securing a site for a new school and brought out the fact that the site which the Community Club had in mind is not available because it is tied up in legal litigation by the estate which owns it.

Hugh S. McCord, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced that an Old Clothes Party will be held at the school house on April 24th. A card party will also be held at this time. Further arrangements will be announced later.

Mrs. Mary K. Davis acting postmistress for a time, thanked the residents of San Carlos for the cooperation shown her during her tenure of office.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Urech spent Sunday at Vallejo to be present at the wedding of their daughter, Gladys, who was married at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Towle.

W. M. Van Doorn, B. E. Schumann and M. J. Colman were among those who purchased property at San Carlos last week.

Members and friends of the San Carlos Progressive Club held an invitational dinner meeting at Pete's Fashion Restaurant on Saturday evening. A number of special speakers delivered interesting talks and other entertainment features were enjoyed by the members. The club is sponsoring the candidates of George H. Semon, John J. Bryan, E. R. Burton, William J. Scott and James Hugh Martin, candidates for the office of city trustee, and Saturday night's entertainment was in the form of a rally.

M. Allen of Santa Cruz, father of Roy Allen, was the guest of his son and daughter-in-law over the week end.

On Tuesday Judge Buck gave a judgment in favor of the plaintiff in the civil action entitled Charles Cavalli and Frank Cavalli against C. H. Widemann and Margaret Bonzagni. Plaintiff, according to the judgment, were given possession to their property at La Honda, known as the Bonzagni place, the sum of $150 and costs of suit.

EAST PALO ALTO

Tonight at the school auditorium the North Palo Alto Residents association will have a whist party. A large number of tickets have been sold and a delightful party is anticipated.

The East Palo Alto Grange meeting was largely attended Tuesday evening. District Deputy State Grand Master E. K. Clendenning and State Lecturer Ida Clendenning of Orchard City Grange, addressed the meeting.

The Runnymede-Woman's Club meeting Wednesday was not as largely attended as usual owing to the storm, but an interesting business session was held. Mrs. Mona Christensen was chosen delegate to the Santa Cruz meeting next week and Mrs. V. Harding will represent the club at Riverside next month. The support of the organization and plans are being made by members to attend the meeting in connection with the committee of 5000 which will meet in San Francisco next week. Tickets are being sold for the banquet to be held at the Fairmont hotel next Tuesday.

Mrs. Lizzie Mosler of Portland, Oregon, is a guest at the T. C. Colby home on University avenue.

Mrs. Geo. Marshall of Walnut street, who has been at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Morton McCloud in Texas, returned home Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Resley of San Jose have purchased a lot from Henry Schilder on Cherry street and lumber is on the ground for a new home.

Miss Marguerite Young, who is attending the College of Music in San Jose, was a week-end visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Faber this week. The Youngs formerly lived in the colony on the M. R. Nesbitt place and are now living in San Jose.

Lester Harper of the University of California and Mr. and Mrs. Joe White of Oakland were week end visitors at the C. L. Harper home and Erma Pollett was also home for the week end from the U. C. at Berkeley.

Mrs. Wm. Ballard of Oakland passed the last week at the home of her father, W. H. Butterfield on Runnymede street.

Mrs. Gertrude Greenwood was a week-end visitor in Carmel this week.

Mrs. Jack Williams and little daughter, Clara, were visitors at the home of Mrs. William's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lund a few days the past week. They are moving to Berkeley and stopped for a visit on their way from San Pedro where they have been located.

Several of little Miss Catherine Brownbaker's schoolmates enjoyed the observance of her 8th birthday last Saturday afternoon in an Easter party. Mrs. Henry Schilder and Ina Gravestock held an Easter party also on Saturday afternoon for their boys in their Sunday school classes in the East Palo Alto Union Sunday School.

PESCADERO

After spending a week at the home of her sister, Mrs. M. R. Mattel, Mrs. Doris Barker and children, returned to their home in San Jose Sunday.

Jack Bell of San Gregorio spent the later part of the week with John Ralston of Memorial Park.

Alexander Granger, who has been in Pescadero for the past two years, left for his home in Oakland Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williamson, Mrs. Ralph Woodman and Mrs. Joe Mesquite motored to San Francisco Tuesday where they attended the second District Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers Association.

Antonio Dias is quite ill at the home of his son, Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Montevaldi and children and J. E. Montevaldi of San Gregorio spent Sunday with Mrs. Mary Montevaldi.

Mr. and Mrs. Carol Lund of Berkeley spent Easter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Steele.

Mrs. James McCormick and daughter, Beth, returned from a week's visit in San Francisco.

Miss Hazel Meyers has moved into the Cummins home.

Louis McCormick is on the sick list.

Mrs. Joe Azevedo of Halfmoon Bay visited Mrs. Herman Frey last week.

A fire destroyed one of the barns on the Peninsula Farm Monday morning in which 150 tons of hay was destroyed. The cause of the blaze is unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Travers, Mr. and Mrs. Attle and Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Piccadara of San Francisco spent Easter with Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Enos.

The Senior Carnelian Ball will be held at the Pescadero Union High School Saturday night, April 17th. Music will be furnished by Allison Whightman of Halfmoon Bay. Admission will be $1.00 per couple.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Goulson and son, Douglas, and Mrs. D. C. Adair were San Francisco visitors Tuesday.

F. G. Williamson and W. H. Moore were Santa Cruz visitors Monday.

WOODSIDE

The stormy weather of Sunday last in no way interfered with the Easter services at the Woodside church. The church was beautifully decorated and was crowded to the doors with worshippers. A very interesting program was presented by the children of the Sunday school and one of the largest collections in the history of the church found its way into the collection plates.

The election on Monday for the commissioners of the new fire district resulted in a unanimous vote for Selah Chamberlain, Jas. V. Neuman and Stanley Morhead. The new fire hose is about completed and the big fire truck will be on the job in a few days.

Closed cars are the popular vehicles in Woodside these days. Lee Beck has just purchased a new Chevrolet sedan, Peter Koehurst has bought a new Dodge sedan, and Bert Emmanuel has a new sedan of the Ford variety.

George Hansen gave an interesting and instructive talk to the pupils of the Woodside school on Tuesday describing his travels and experiences in Africa, Australia and the Argentine. Mr. Hansen was born in Norway but began his travels when a lad of fifteen and since that time has lived in nearly every quarter of the globe. He is known as one of the most expert dairymen in the United States and at present is in charge of the Gilman herd of Ayrshire cattle.

Mrs. Charles Josselyn returned on Monday from a two week's visit to Santa Barbara and opened her home here for the summer season.

Mrs. Alanson Weeks entertained about forty of her friends from the city on Easter, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Fagan sailed on Wednesday for Honolulu, where they will spend several weeks. On their return they will open their home here for the rest of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Schilling and family are expected to return this week from Europe. They have been away for a year.

Sand Storm Blows Up While At Work on "Desert Gold"

One of the most effective and important roles in "Desert Gold" was played by a party neither engaged for the part nor under salary. Dame Nature was the player. Dame Nature might have been listed in the great cast for she contributed to the great delight of Director George B. Seitz, a genuine sand storm during the making of one of the most important sequences in the picture. Just such a sand storm as Zane Grey might have had in mind when he wrote the story for which Paramount made the picture.

Fortunately, too, the storm came just at the right time and found both cameramen and actors ready.

Robert Frazer and Shirley Mason, the principal actors in the storm scene, suffered from cuts and bruises and were almost blinded but the results justified the effort.

"Believe me," said Seitz, "Nature certainly stages her scenes wonderfully."

Neil Hamilton and William Powell are also featured in "Desert Gold." The supporting cast includes such capable players as George Rigas, Josef Swickard, Frank Lackteen and Bernard Seigal.

This pictures will be shown at the Sequoia Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, April 12 and 13.

Brief Facts About

Fairbanks' "Don Q"

The new Douglas Fairbanks screen feature "Don Q, Son of Zorro" is a supreme melodrama. It is a modern story, laid in Spain, with most of the action taking place in Madrid.

Action-plus, with lightning sword-play, stunts, athletic achievement, humor and romance merge ceaselessly.

The scenic background is the most elaborate and pretentious imaginable for the period. Fairbanks leaps as it were from castle to castle.

The plot is founded on "Don Q's Love Story" by K. and Hesketh Prichard, adapted for the screen by Jack Cunningham.

The story positively has nothing to do with the Cervantes hero, Don Quixote or his windmill troubles.

Mary Astor, young, beautiful and accomplished, has the leading feminine role.

The picture will be shown at the Sequoia Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday with a matinee Wednesday afternoon at 3:30.

Bresnahan Is Back With McGraw

John Joseph McGraw, who dabbles in real estate, baseball pennants and develops baseball players and managers, is shown here with Roger Bresnahan, Giant coach and famous catcher. Bresnahan was the best catcher in the big leagues more than fifteen years ago and was the first man to introduce shin guards for catchers. Bresnahan is acting as coach and teaching the young Giant pitchers some of the tricks of the trade.

Chattanooga of the Southern league, announces the release of Tommy Morris, second baseman, to the Peoria club of the Three-I league.

Fred Fitzsimmons of the Giants was one of the few National league hurlers whose slants didn't hit an opposing batter all season, though he faced 504.

Two new catchers, Chester Horn of Cambridge, and William Moore of Kansas City, with Al Stokes, last year's squad, have joined the Boston Red Sox.

President Harry A. Williams has indicated that the Pacific Coast league will fight clear of the "resh-ball" rule. It is a subject for the league directors.

Baseball teams of Stanford university and University of Washington will tour Japan this year and a schedule of games with several colleges has been arranged.

Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, has issued his annual manifesto, to wit: "Golf and baseball do not mix, but I will mix with any player who plays golf."

Babe Ruth has started an eye-shade among the Yankees. The Bambino is wearing a shade in Helen Wills to protect his peepers from the sun, and has pronounced it a success.

National league rivals say Pittsburgh must strengthen back of the plate. One high-class catcher, they admit, would make the Pirates mighty dangerous for about three years more.

Atlanta of the Southern league has sent pitcher Frank Dodson, obtained last summer from the Virginia league, to the Shamokin club of the New York-Pennsylvania league, on option.

Great things are expected of Emmet Dean by followers of the New York university baseball team this season. Dean is a southpaw. He has a fine assortment of curves, plenty of speed and, unlike many left-handers, boasts control.

Wants Morgan Bout

Ted Morgan of Seattle is the world's champion junior lightweight and has received an offer of $15,000 from Ted Rickard to defend his title against Joe Glick, the eastern junior lightweight.

McGraw as Pennant Winner

John McGraw has had the distinction of being with 13 clubs that won pennants. It was with the Baltimore club in 1894, 1895, 1896 that he had his first touch of pennant life. He won pennants in 1904, 1905, 1911, 1912, 1913, 1917, 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924 for the New York Giants. The last four years of pennant winning were in successive seasons, thereby equaling the record Charlie Connors and the St. Louis Browns made quite a few years ago.

"Big Bill" Edwards

William H. (Big Bill) Edwards, football captain and line man in his days at Princeton and widely known gridiron referee, has been named president of the newly formed American League of Professional Football Players, the organization sponsored by Red Grange and his manager, C. C. Pyle.

FEW HURLERS ARE GOOD AS HITTERS

Host of Big League Pitchers Never Hit Home Run.

Here is a list of hurlers who were strong on long-distance hitting. Naturally there are but a few of them. A host of hurlers in major league baseball never made a four-base hit and but few of them hit out the double number in triples. Walter Johnson has hit out more two-base hits than any hurler the game ever had. Of course, this has reference only to hurlers who were doing duty on the firing line when these records were made.

It took Walter a long time to amass them but he hit out 87 doubles during his career in big league baseball. "Babe" Ruth failed to equal this mark during his time as a hurler but he served only five seasons in that capacity. George Mullen, of the Detroit club, from 1902 until 1913, hit out 72 doubles. Al Orth, famous as a hurler and later as an umpire, was a heavy hitter and a regular one too. In his time as a big leaguer he hit out 52 doubles, 25 triples and nine homers. Otis Crandall, of the Giants, during 1908 until 1915, was a great batsman for he lugged but two points of the 300 class when he finished his big league career. He hit out 37 doubles, 19 triples and 9 homers during his time in the big show.

Such hurlers as Guy Hecker, Bobby Carothers, Dave Foutz, Jack Stivetts, Charlie Ferguson, Bill Kennedy, Scott Stratton, Win Mercer, who were in the game during the eighties and nineties no doubt had records in total bases which touched the 300 mark but the data is not available, that is, the correct data. Jack Stivetts, if his exact record in two-base hits were obtainable, would lead all hurlers in that line.

Grover Alexander, while his percentage in extra base hits doesn't reach the 300 mark, made a lot of long distance hits for he had 48 doubles, 11 triples, eight homers in the 1,341 times he stepped to the plate. "Babe" Ruth leads in home runs with Walter Johnson next, Crandall third and Al Orth fourth, made seven homers during his time in big league baseball. He has been known to have knocked out two homers in a single game.

Here are the averages of hurlers who reached 300 or better in total bases. It will be seen that but few hurlers reached that mark during a space of 40 years and it is some feat for the boys who do the firing to accomplish it.

Here are the names of 15 hurlers who gained a reputation as hard hitters and one of them—"Babe" Ruth—has earned the distinction of being the hardest hitter the game ever had.

Director Stagg Making

Ready for Major Event

A. A. Stagg, director of athletics at the University of Chicago, who is chairman of the committee in charge of the national collegiate track and field championships to be held in Chicago on June 12, recently announced efforts will be made to make this year's games the most successful of any in the history of the association.

The Maroon director is working on a circular letter, which will be sent to every university and college which is a member of the National Collegiate association. In this letter Stagg intends to emphasize the importance of every school having representation in this meet.

The event will be held on either Stagg field or in the Memorial stadium in Grant park. Major John G. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the western conference, and T. E. Jones, track and field coach at Wisconsin, are the other members of the committee.

English See Change in the Game of Billiards

The tendency of so many modern billiard players to concentrate on the red ball game is causing a revival of the question among followers of the English style of play in England as to the advisability of placing a limitation on the number of consecutive strokes of this type. There is a strong feeling that the time has arrived to take such action. As the game is primarily meant to be played with three balls, there appears to be strong reasons why some such restriction should be adopted.

From time to time it has been considered necessary for the laws of the game to be amended to correct any desire to specialize on any particular kind of stroke. The spot stroke was barred many years ago and the anchor cannon was made illegal, while consecutive ball-to-ball runs were limited to 25, a cushion being then to be played before the sequence could be continued.

An experiment will be tried later this season of restricting the losing and winning hazards in a similar way.

Again 13 Is Unlucky

Andy Smith's successor as football coach at University of California will be handicapped by the loss of 13 players from the 1925 team. From the Bear backfield will pass Capt. Tut Imaley, the flashing half; Bull Young, the pounding fullback; Jimmy Dixon at half, and Glen Carlson, first string quarterback. Nine linemen will also be missing, including Carey, giant guard; Bob Francis, tackle; Frank Thacher, end, and Baze, center. They were all good men.

THE CLINTONS

Synopsis.—Idly fishing Hermans creek, in California, Caleb Warner, civil engineer, and a New Englander, is witness of the end of a coyote pulled down by a girl named Betty Clinton, a girl he introduces himself, and learns her name is Clinton. With western hospitality she invites him to the ranch to meet her father.

CHAPTER II

El Nido and Padilla

The Rancho El Nido, which means The Nest, was well named. Behind the lee of the tall eucalypts, planted with one outlet out of which the over-flow rippled and ran under an archway in the foundation of the house. The place was above all a home, long-settled, deep-rooted, if a nest, built on the ground, as some nests are, may be fancied to have taken root. The place was well styled El Nido.

Back to it, in the twilight, at the urgent suggestion of the girl's father, a suggestion that was half command, holding such spontaneous invitation that it could not be refused without a touch of churlishness, came Caleb, returning from the stream above the waterfall, packing a well-filled creel.

The girl rose from an outer porch as he came up from the stream and met him at the steps. She was transformed. A soft glow of white had wrought magic and she received the homage of Caleb's surprised and frankly admiring gaze demurely. He opened the lid of the creel for her inspection.

"You know how to cast a fly in Massachusetts," she said. "They are beauties. We shall have them for supper, Wang!"

A fat and genial Chinaman, immaculate in white, appeared at the far end of the gallery, came forward and took the fish with a chuckle of approval.

"Supper ready twenty minutes, Miss Betty," he said as he waddled off.

"Betty—Betty Clinton!" He had her name at last and thought it suited her. "You'll want to wash up. Maria will show you to your room."

"My room?"

"You are to stay here tonight. Father would not hear of you going. There is no moon. It is three miles to the canyon to the station at Heyward. Seven by the road. And there are no trains that you could catch conveniently."

She led the way in and delivered him to Maria, father than Wang, ample of breast, triple chin, Spanish of look and accent.

"Maria," said the girl, "is the actual ruler of El Nido. You must pass inspection by Maria to be welcome here. You have fifteen minutes. We shall be in the big room at the north end. You can come in through the patio."

It was altogether a little astounding. Caleb reflected, as he made what toilet he could. He had come to the valley unheralded, without mutual acquaintance, without introduction, and here he was, pressed as a guest, almost as a friend, in Massachusetts—he laughed at himself in the mirror as he fussed with his tie. This was California, a country to itself, with very pleasant customs. And he was aware that his welcome would be as his behavior. But it was all very pleasant, very Western.

The big room ran the full length of one side of the house. At either end a quarter was raised by two steps, arched off, one part a library and study, the walls covered with books, the other end more distinctly feminine with piano, flowers, inviting chairs of wicker and good rugs, some pictures on the walls. The intermediate space was common ground, dining room and living room combined. The place was lit with oil lamps in wrought-iron brackets and with candles in branch holders for the table. The meal, with the rustling, bestarched Maria, in black gown and white apron, superintending Wang, who served as well as he cooked, was perfection.

The girl presided over the main dishes. Her father, tall, erect, gray-haired, gray of close-clipped mustache and goatee, had one sleeve tucked in the side pocket of his coat.

"I shall put the formal interrogation, sir," he said to Caleb. "How do you find the West?"

"I find it eager. And I like it. We bustle in the East but our ways and means are settled."

"Eager? I like your term. And I am glad you like the West. We shall hope to see more of you."

"You have lived here long?" asked Caleb.

"I shall put the formal interrogation, sir," he said to Caleb. "How do you find the West?"

"I find it eager. And I like it. We bustle in the East but our ways and means are settled."

"Eager? I like your term. And I am glad you like the West. We shall hope to see more of you."

"You have lived here long?" asked Caleb.

"My grandfather settled here in eighteen forty. He was one of Fremont's cavalry legion. He helped to the thirsty earth or to thirsty people. To make a city grow where none has been, or render dry lands fertile."

"Do you expect to settle out West?" asked Clinton. "To make your home here?"

"I hadn't gone quite as far as that," answered Caleb with a smile. "It depends upon whether I get the chance to settle—I mean by that if work opens up. I like the West. I should like to make a home here, I think. I have none elsewhere," he added simply. "I have relatives in the East, and I even own a house out there—but it isn't a home any longer, since both my father and mother are dead."

There are silences that create an atmosphere more sympathetic than the finest choice of phrase. Caleb found himself talking of his plans in greater extension than he would have considered possible to chance-met, recent acquaintances. He had, he told them, a little money, he had a chance to sell his Massachusetts house that held open indefinitely. This, with his training, and his youth, constituted his capital. At the end of the evening, in his room, the windows open, admitting the fragrance of the patio-garden, the subdued chuckle of the overflow from the spring basin, he realized that he had done little but talk about himself and his own affairs.

He wondered whether he had not been a bit of a prig, even a bore. He had shown no appreciation of the girl's femininity, had surely been lacking in conventional gallantry. Girls, Caleb believed, liked that sort of thing—expected it. Yet, talking to her in the dusk of the veranda had been a good deal like talking to another man. Her intelligence was keen, her interest had not seemed feigned.

Meanwhile, in her own chamber, Betty Clinton came to a favorable conclusion in the same matter.

"For a Yank," she told herself, as she arranged her hair for the night in two great, shining braids, "he is quite agreeable—so far. I think I am going to like Caleb Warner."

Caleb decided not to outstay his welcome. He announced his intention at breakfast.

"We shall hope to see you again," said Clinton and Betty backed his invitation.

She seemed a little older this morning, appearing the well-poised hostess in her houseworn. To Caleb, still new to western ways, it was hard to reconcile this housewife person presiding over the silver coffee urn with the rider on the pinto, galloping hard after her hounds to the kill. Yet there was no real discrepancy, no loss of dignity, of sex. And she made the girls that Caleb had grown up with seem suddenly constricted in his recollection.

"You are not to walk down to the train," she told him. "I am sorry that I cannot drive you but I have a lot to do. You shall ride the Don. Padilla will go with you and bring him back. And we are to see you again. Soon."

Caleb was not at all certain of his prowess in the saddle. To his relief the horse turned out to be a natural single-footer, racking along with a smooth motion that left him almost motionless in the saddle. The selection was, he felt, another indication of kindly tact.

Padilla, swarthy, bow-legged, agile, bore signs of battle that had come close to maiming him. The left side of his face was marked with a puckered scar, purple against his brown skin. It ran from eye to chin, a raking weal that showed where the flesh must have been laid open by a frightful blow. He wore no coat and his sleeves were rolled high. His left forearm was scored with cleavages. His left side seemed shrunken between hip and shoulder. Caleb was conscious that all down the canyon, Padilla subjected him to a close scrutiny. When directly in front of him he could almost feel Padilla's black eyes boring between his shoulder blades. Despite the unwelcome recommendation that the Mexican held from his employment at El Nido, Caleb fancied him a better companion for high noon than a dark night.

The trail dipped down towards water level, fording the stream. Caleb reined in to let the Don drink the bright water and Padilla followed example. As they sat side by side the Mexican spoke for the first time.

"Eet was here, senior," he said, "that I got these."

He touched his cheek, his left ribs, and tapped his left forearm with a swift gesture.

"Get was a puma, senior. A cougar. A lion of the mountains. Carrajo! Almost eat keel me, Luis Padilla. Knife against claws an' teeth, senior. And the knife went. Thees knife."

With the same swift deftness he half drew a shining blade from a sheath that was tucked inside the belt of his trousers, then replaced it. The speedy excitation of the Latin cupped his features. They twisted in a ferocious snarl, they looked as they must have appeared in the actual conflict, Caleb thought.

This Padilla seems to be an intense sort of person. What's his purpose with Warner?

Old Abraham Stuck to Middle of Road

A man and his wife took in an aged and supposedly wealthy relative to live with them, thinking they would profit when the old fellow passed away. Later they learned that he hadn't much money, and they were anxious to get rid of him.

They agreed between themselves that they would start an argument at dinner. The husband would claim that the soup was too salty; the wife would declare that it was not salty enough. They would leave the matter to old Abraham. If he agreed with the wife, the husband would throw him out. If he agreed with the husband, the wife would throw him out. Consequently, at dinner, the husband said: "Rachel, this soup is too salty."

"Rachel tasted the soup, and said, 'No, my dear, the soup is not salty enough.'"

"Then," said the husband, "we will leave it to Abraham, and see what he says about it. Abraham, what do you think? Is the soup too salty or is it not salty enough?"

Old Abraham, who was enjoying his soup, didn't hesitate, but said, between sips, "Veil, it suits me."—Los Angeles Times.

Seek More Nicotine

Nicotine, not less of it, but more, is wanted by tobacco-breeding plant scientists at the state agricultural experiment station at Geneva, N. Y. This reversal of usual tobacco requirements is being sought for the benefit of the insecticide industry, which makes large use of nicotine in the manufacture of insect poisons. Certain "wild" tobacco are being found more promising than the cultivated varieties and are being experimented with to learn ways of increasing their already high nicotine content.

Government Printing Office

Largest Plant of Its Kind Celebrates Its 65th Birthday

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

IN THE United States senate the other day debate waxed fast and furious over the Volstead act. Senator Bruce of Maryland and Senators Edge and Edwards of New Jersey were making the fur fly, with other senators on either side looking for a chance to get a word in edgewise. Whereupon Senator Smoot of Utah broke in by main force. Senator Smoot's specialty is figures and appropriations; he's a sort of "Treasury Watchdog." So he simply got into the fray long enough to inquire the senators to remember the Congressional Record to remember which would cost the taxpayers $48 a page. The retort of the debating senators was, of course, that it was money well spent.

Without passing upon the merits either of the debate or of the reply of the senators to Senator Smoot, his contribution to the proceedings calls attention to the fact that the printing of the Congressional Record is a bigger job than that of printing any daily newspaper in the world; that it is nevertheless merely one item in the day's work of the Government Printing Office; that this office is the largest of its kind in the world, and that this monster establishment celebrated its sixty-fifth birthday the other day. All of which is interesting to the taxpayer who helps pay that $48 a page.

If you want to fix this beginning of the Government Printing Office, why the deal was put over the very day that Abraham Lincoln was inaugurated President. The federal government agreed to buy for $135,000 the printing plant of Cornelius Wendt and a little later 15th Street, the first superintendent of public printing, took over the premises and put in operation the Government Printing Office. Today the office occupies a building worth $4,000,000, operated equipment worth $3,500,000; employs over 4,000 operatives and turns out an annual product of more than $12,000,000. And, mind you, this Government Printing Office is a separate and distinct establishment from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing of the Treasury Department, which makes the money and stamps and does an enormous amount of other work.

Could congress function without the Congressional Record? Probably. Still it is the stenographic report of the day's proceedings in both houses and it must be on the desks of the members of congress before congress meets the next day.

Copy for the Record is supposed to be in hand by midnight. This must be set up, stereotype plates made, printed, gathered, stitched and mailed by 5 o'clock in the morning. The stereotype plates are made in the foundry as the type pages rush in from the linotype room and are whisked away to the presses, especially designed and built for printing the Record and publications of similar size.

There are two sixty-four-page Hoe presses, constructed to print signatures of four to sixty-four pages, and to fold, gather and paste or wire-stitch the separate signatures at the rate of 12,000 copies an hour. From the gathering machine the copies go to a continuous trimmer, and the finished copies progress along to the nearby mailing tables, where they are wrapped and carried by moving belts to mail sacks at the ends of the tables. As rapidly as the sacks are filled they are dumped into a chute and transported by a belt conveyor through a tunnel to the city post office, where they are transferred to the Union station and placed on outgoing trains, all within five minutes after leaving the Government Printing Office. Thus 350 sacks of Records are dispatched nightly when congress is in session, and the type for the Record must be held for thirty days for any necessary reprint work. At the end of each session of congress the Congressional Record is compiled into book form and some 4,500 copies of these are run off and bound.

Under the rules the public printer shall furnish the Congressional Record as follows, and shall furnish gratuitously no others in addition thereto: To the vice president and each senator, 88 copies; and to the secretary and sergeant at arms of the senate, each 20 copies; and to the secretary, for office use, 10 copies; to each representative and delegate, 60 copies; and to the clerk and door-keeper of the house, each 20 copies; and to the clerk, for office use, 10 copies; and to the clerk, for use of the members of the house of representatives, 50 copies; and to the sergeant at arms of the senate, for the use of the senate, 20 copies; to be supplied daily as originally published, or in the revised or permanent form bound only in half Russia, or in part in each form, as each may elect. To the vice president and each senator, representative, and delegate there shall be furnished two copies of the daily Record, one to be delivered at his residence and one at the capitol.

The printing of the Record is a most exasperat-ing job from a printer's viewpoint because it calls for so much "elasticity." Its pages are 11 1/2 by 9 inches. The text is in two columns. A page contains about 2,200 words. It may consist of eight pages, or it may run to 200. In either event it must be produced on the same basis to meet the same time limits. The average size is 80 pages and the average edition is 35,500. The largest daily Record ever printed consisted of 300 pages of railroad records, which the late Senator Robert LaFollette inserted in the senate proceedings on May 6, 1914.

The Congressional Record is at times very good reading indeed—if you know how to read it. A beginner might read every word of the debate over the measure. But any citizen can tackle its pages if he cares to. For example, the daily Record for the first session of the Sixty-ninth congress will be furnished by mail to subscribers, free of postage, for $1.50 per month, or $8 for the session, payable in advance. Single copies, 24 pages or less, 3 cents; each additional 8 pages, 1 cent extra. Remit by money order payable to Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. You will probably find that Uncle Sam will not take your personal check.

The printing of the Record, as stated, is but a small part of the work of the Government Printing Office. Says an official notice:

"The Superintendent of Documents, United States Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., is authorized to sell public documents at cost, and upon application that official will furnish free of charge price lists showing, under topical headings, the publications now available for sale. The following topics are covered: Agriculture, law, engineering, lands, army and navy, fishes, Indians, transportation, finance, education, noncontiguous territory, geography and exploration, tariff, chemistry, animal industry, forestry, plant industry, roads, soils, statistics, American history, health and hygiene, poultry and birds, maps, political economy, and astronomy."

The Government Printing Office attracts a steady stream of visitors. Of course, there is much to see beside "printing." The vast building contains all sorts of interesting places, including restaurants, cafeterias and social service rooms. It would not be possible to keep thousands of operatives at work night and day without such things.

A thing that every one wants to see nowadays is a certain linotype machine. It's much like any other linotype machine—except for its history and associations. It is the "Pershing Linotype" and is nothing less than the machine used in Pershing's headquarters at Chaumont, France, to set type for the most confidential communications of the general staff of the American army.

The Pershing machine is a model No. 5 linotype of American manufacture, but was originally equipped with a French keyboard and designed to cast slugs lower than American height. When the commander of the American Expeditionary Forces decided to establish a printing plant at Chaumont, he detailed Maj. W. W. Kirby to procure the necessary equipment in France. Major Kirby located two linotype machines in a small French printing office, and, despite the protest of the French military commission, transported them by canal and truck to General Pershing's headquarters.

The Pershing machine was later used in the fully-equipped printing plant operated by the Twenty-ninth engineers. After the Armistice the war printing plant was dismantled and shipped to Camp Humphreys, Va., from which camp the Pershing machine was finally transferred to the government printing office.

Although the war machine has been completely reconstructed and now looks much like the 144 other linotypes with which it keeps pace in setting type for prosaic government documents, it their new diet to the deer grass and a cold season, and for that reason the California herd will be removed to the San Bernardino mountains of that state or to the Grand canyon region of Arizona, where elevation, extreme and mean temperatures, and climatic conditions generally are considered ideal for these rodents.

Finland, the country of long winters, is becoming an electric fan center, the fans being used for ventilating purposes in public places in cold weather.

Is your car a General Motors Car?

IF YOU own a Chevrolet, a Pontiac, an Oldsmobile, an Oakland, a Buick or a Cadillac, you own a General Motors car.

"But what," you may ask, "does that mean to me?" It means just this:

General Motors is a family of companies building motor cars and trucks and such other famous automotive products as Fisher Bodies, Delco and Remy electrical systems, Harrison radiators and AC spark plugs. Still other General Motors products are Delco-Light electric power plants and Frigidaire electric refrigerators. There are General Motors plants in 44 cities, employing 120,000 people; and sales and service organizations in 144 countries.

General Motors uses the combined resources of this great family for the benefit of each member. It effects great savings in the purchase of quality materials; it provides the best of engineering talent; it maintains the world's largest research laboratories and proving ground for automobiles; and it assures the permanence of its various divisions and the products which they make.

In other words, General Motors has every facility and every incentive to maintain quality and to offer value for the price; and the current models of General Motors cars are offered as the greatest values in the history of the automobile industry.

MENLO PARK CHAMBER OF COMMERCE UNANIMOUSLY ENDORSES INCORPORATION

Under the Incorporation Act of 1881, the State of California saw fit to grant local government to communities with a population of 500 inhabitants.

After years of effort and considerable outlay, we are at last granted the right to vote on the question—shall Menlo Park be incorporated?—to be decided by the votes of the registered citizens within the proposed municipality on Monday, April 19th.

We are convinced that every citizen and householder should be vitally concerned in this question at this time, and hereby appeal to every voter interested in the present and future growth and advancement of this section to vote YES and by so doing place his home community on an equal footing with every other municipality on the peninsula.

The state constitution of California limits the power of city officers, particularly of the sixth class, under which class Menlo Park will be incorporated.

The law allows only one dollar maximum tax must meet all expenses, including salary of all the officers of the town.

Immediately after Menlo Park is incorporated fifty cents county tax will be taken off the county taxes, so that the increase is really only fifty cents above the county tax rate.

No additional expense can be added above the amount of the county tax and the real increase of fifty cents as explained above, except by a two-thirds majority of the voters of Menlo Park; this gives the voters absolute control of the tax question.

In unincorporated districts the county officials have unlimited powers to assess and tax. In incorporated districts the power of taxation is strictly limited by law. There are unincorporated areas in this county that are paying larger taxes than some of the towns are.

Over two hundred towns of California are incorporated and all are prosperous. Menlo Park is the only town of its size in San Mateo County that is not incorporated. If incorporation is not good for a community, why have all the other communities incorporated?

As long as the Sanitary District, Fire Department and School District are as well managed as they are at present, the incorporated town of Menlo Park need not assume either the expense or responsibility of them.

Harmony and unity are most essential to growth and production, and proper development of the community on the part of individuals, creating strife, hatred and dissension, is detrimental to any locality.

Incorporation on the part of any community is for just one specific purpose and that is, that the people of that community may govern their own local affairs.

The climate of Menlo Park, according to government records, is one of the finest in the world, and it does not seem fair that in the very heart of this paradise, a town should be permitted to grow without any control whatever in the way of zoning and building regulations.

It is the zoning and building control that Menlo Park needs more than anything else, and that is one thing that only incorporation can give.

By incorporating, Menlo Park can control its own section, can zone its territory to keep business and industries out of residential sections, to the protection of the home owner, and make building laws to protect the entire community.

After a most careful study from all angles, the Menlo Park Chamber of Commerce unanimously endorses incorporation and invites letters and inquiries from the voters of this district on such points of incorporation as are not understood, and its officers and directors will do all in their power to give the information desired, and to answer all questions to the best of their ability.

The Chamber of Commerce has compiled the following facts to be presented to the voters of Menlo Park. Voters are urged to peruse them.

EXCHANGE CLUB MEETS; ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

At the Tuesday evening meeting of the Redwood City Exchange club this week officers were elected for the coming term. Carroll Hall, one of the original group responsible for the formation of the club here, and who has been acting as the president since the organization of the club a few weeks ago, was elected its first president by a unanimous vote. Other officers elected were as follows: A. J. Stebbins, 1st vice-president; Oscar Olson, 2nd vice-president; Lindsay Gray, third vice-president; Dr. W. B. Langston, secretary and J. W. Locker, treasurer.

The board of control elected Tuesday consists of Guy Kennedy, Frank Griffin, Wilbur Dossie, Edmund Scott, P. A. Ryan and Dr. W. M. Murphy.

District Governor Irving Lee and Judge Percy O'Connor of San Jose were the principal speakers. Judge O'Connor brought home to the men in a forcible manner the importance of casting their ballot and the great opportunity presented to the service club to raise the percentage of votes cast in their community.

Plans for charter night are being carefully prepared and the date set is Tuesday, April 20th.

The Reach of the Spoken Word

WHEN the small family group of primitive man expanded into the cave community, a means of communicating beyond the normal range of the voice became imperative. Then someone discovered that by making a speaking-trumpet of his hands, he could increase the reach of the spoken word, could add new effectiveness to the human voice.

Other means of transmitting intelligence, in their turn, were found to serve the needs of man: the signal drum and the beacon fire; the written message, carried by runner, by rider, by water or by rail; and finally, the telegraph.

But these messages, however carried, lacked the direct and personal qualities of conversation. They were but symbols of speech, the shadows of the spoken word.

Then, fifty years ago, came the telephone. A half-century of scientific research has extended the reach of man's voice to thousands of miles. The Bell System's vast network of lines provides a service nationwide in scope. The American continent today is no larger, from a communication standpoint, than was the prehistoric community in which the cavemen shouted from cliff to cliff.
